Two Killed In Train, Car, Crash

Fair Brothers, Farmers Residing East of Sedalia, Die Instantly

Frank Fair, 50, and his brother John H. "Dick" Fair, 70, who reside two miles east of Sedalia, were instantly killed about 11:30 o'clock this morning when the automobile in which they were coming to Sedalia was struck by a troop train on the Missouri Pacific lines at the second crossing east of the underpass on Highway 50.

The engineer on the train was Howard Briggs and the conductor was Brown Mittlemeier, both of Jefferson City. The train was west bound.

According to Mrs. Leebeth Fair, stepmother of the two unmarried men with whom she made her home, the brothers had started to Sedalia on business and had not been gone more than four or five minutes when the accident occurred.

Car Headed North

The car was headed north across the crossing. The automobile apparently was being driven by the younger brother, however the position of the bodies was such that this could not be definitely determined. The automobile was knocked 150 feet west down the right-of-way and torn into shreds. The motor was knocked loose and thrown against a fence 46 feet south, while the hood of the car sailed nearly 55 feet over a fence, into a field off the right-of-way. One tire was found more than a quarter of a mile west of the accident and right-of-way for more than a half wreckage was strewn along the a mile.

Frank Fair was knocked out of the car about 75 feet from the crossing while his brother was lying just in front of the vehicle. Dr. Kenneth Holden, coroner, called to the scene viewed the bodies and ordered them removed to the Ewing funeral home. He said that he did not plan an inquest unless requested as he felt the accident was unavoidable.

The brothers were born on the old McFarland farm northeast of Sedalia, Frank on March 22, 1895 and John H., on August 30, 1875. They moved to the present Fair farm with their parents in 1909 and have since resided there.

Frank Fair was prominent in Democratic politics in Pettis county and several years ago was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for judge of the eastern district. He was a veteran of World War I and served ten months in France and was a member of Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion. He was in a camp in this country for two months, entering the service in 1917.

Survivors

Surviving the brothers are their stepmother of the family home, a brother Thomas "Tom" Fair of Clifton City, two sisters Mrs. Nell DeLapp, wife of John DeLapp of LaMonte and Mrs. Letha Weatherspoon of the state of California. More than seventy-five nieces and nephews and grand nieces and nephews also survive.

There were ten children in the Fair family. Their father John Frank Fair died in 1917 and the following brothers and sisters also preceded them in death: Curtis Fair, Mrs. Nannie Miller, Robert E. Fair, Mrs. John Potter and Mrs. Eva Fair.

Also surviving are a step brother Don Cochrane, State Road, North Carolina and Mrs. Susan Blaylock of route 4, Sedalia.

The bodies were taken to the Gillespie funeral home this afternoon.

Funeral arrangements will not be made until word is received from relatives.

Child, Six, is Kidnaped; $20,000 Asked

Father Appeals by Radio; Promises To Give the Money

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Golden-haired Suzanne Degan, 6, was kidnaped for $20,000 ransom today and her father, a $7,500 a year government employee appealed by radio for her safe return, promising "I'll give you the money."

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Six-year-old Suzanne Degan, daughter of a Chicago OPA executive, was kidnaped early today and the Chicago City News Bureau said the kidnapper had contacted the family by telephone to repeat a $20,000 ransom demand.

The pretty, blue-eyed, golden haired girl was missed from her bed at 7:30 a. m. when her father, James Degan went to awaken her for school. At 10 a. m. the kidnapper telephoned the north side home, the City News Bureau said, to reiterate the ransom demand to Degan, who earlier told newsmen:

"I have no money and I know of no reason why I should be a target for a kidnapping for ransom."

The News Bureau said the telephone call was made by a man. Police traced the call to a number in the Rogers Park district. The section in which the Degan lives is known as Edgewater and adjoins the Rogers Park district on the south.

Ransom Note Found

A ransom note found in the girl's room stressed that the family not notify the police or the newspapers or the child would be harmed.

The threats were repeated over the telephone, the News Bureau said, and the caller insisted on the ransom, saying he would call later.

Shortly after 11 a. m. Detective Chief Walter Storms hurried from the scene of the kidnapping at 5943 Kenmore avenue, a two-story duplex house, to the Summerdale police station, collected six squads of policemen and raced west with them.

Three FBI agents conferred with Degan as did Sheriff Michael Mulcahy of Cook county (Chicago) a friend. Police Commissioner John C. Prendergast, who took office only seven days ago, assumed personal charge of the case.

Tornado in Mississippi

GREENWOOD, Miss., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Ernest Shute and her nine-year old daughter were killed last night in a tornado that struck the small Coila community in Carroll county, about 15 miles east of Greenwood.

Four other children of the Shute family and their father were critically injured. All were brought to the hospital at Greenwood for treatment. The father suffered fractures of both legs and head injuries.

In another storm the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Campbell was killed at Indianola, Miss.

Ambulance workers who went to the remote Coila community from Greenwood, said no one else was reported killed or injured, although the tornado damaged 15 or 20 rural homes over a five-mile path.

The members of the Shute family were killed or injured as the storm, dipping down about 6 p. m., struck their home and demolished it.

No damage was reported in Greenwood but unsettled weather conditions prevailed over a wide area.

Two Robins Are Seen

Mrs. George Hull, 1113 West Main street, thought that it seemed like spring the past couple of days with the high temperature, the thunder, lightning and rain, but Saturday morning when she looked out her window and saw a pert little robin, she began to wonder if it was still January, or if she had lost a couple of months somewhere.

M. L. Eaton, 617 East Tenth street, reports seeing a robin in his yard Sunday, adding that it is exceptionally early for the bird to be seen here.

Some Coming Home

NACOGDOCHES, Tex., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Red Cross and local relief agencies were caring for 500 homeless families and more than 300 injured persons today as the death toll mounted to 29 in tornadoes which swept across five East Texas counties.

Two Red Cross emergency dispensing stations have been set up here and another at Palestine to issue clothing, food and bedding to destitute families. Nine emergency shelters have been set up by local chapters in the five counties.

National headquarters of the Red Cross announced in Washington yesterday that it had obtained priorities for 1,750,000 board feet of lumber which it estimated as sufficient for immediate emergency construction requirements.

UNO Convenes On Thursday

By John A. Parris

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—With the issue of the atomic bomb uppermost in their minds, delegates of 51 members of the United Nations will set out this week to achieve the hope and dream of mankind—lasting peace.

Against the backdrop of bomb-scarred London, the general assembly of the United Nations will convene for its first meeting Thursday amid hopes it will succeed where the old League of Nations failed.

Just how far America, Britain and Canada are willing to go in disclosing information about the atom is to be discussed thoroughly by the general assembly some time after Prime Minister Attlee launches the opening sessions.

The issue of safeguarding American atom secrets may force a big power review of the atomic energy plan agreed upon recently at the Moscow foreign ministers' conference.

'Sixty-Six' is Going to Join Sgt. Karbon

'War Dog' Had Been Well Cared for by Ex-Serviceman

Making an appeal for his lost dog through the Democrat-Capital Sunday, Sgt. Don M. Karbon, Hyattsville, Maryland, is going to get his war dog back. Although the animal, an Australian sheep dog had been previously found by ex-Staff Sergeant Lewis Wheeler, 408 East Thirteenth street, in charge of the baggage room in the Missouri Pacific, it was not until he saw the newspaper article did he have any idea who the dog owner was. He learned later Sgt. Karbon nearly missed his train looking for the dog.

"I know just how the Sergeant feels about losing his dog," said Wheeler, "and I am sending '66' on to him today." "66" is the name given to the dog by Sgt. Karbon.

It is sort of liver-colored, looks like a cross between a fox and a coyote.

Asked if the dog answered to the name of "66", S/Sgt. Wheeler said, "Well yes, as a matter of fact she answers to 'Lady' just as well. That's what mother started calling her the day I took her to my home and she seemed to like it."

Continuing Wheeler told of the dog's actions since he found her. "I first noticed her, I think, Thursday morning walking up and down the platform out in front. I could see she appeared to be looking for someone and was lost. I called to her and immediately we made friends. I then took her home and gave her a good meal and we started calling her Lady."

Shield At Noise

"I can now understand why she shield whenever a heavy truck or a train passed by with a rumbling noise. When the photographer took our picture Sunday, I could understand she had seen action and probably plenty of it. The dog was extremely nervous whenever the flash bulb on the camera would go off."

"If this dog has been through all the Sergeant writes about, I hardly blame him for wanting her back so he can take care of her. She's a good dog but just isn't used to children yet. I understand how he could become attached to '66' or 'Lady' because we had a dog in our outfit overseas which we all learned to love. We called her 'Punk'."

'Blue Blood' To Them

"In fact this mongrel had more missions than any man in the outfit. If an accurate account had been kept I am sure she would have had more than 90 missions over enemy territory and in combat. This dog of ours, although the pedigree wasn't exactly known was 'blue blood' to us. She would trot out on the line whenever a mission was on. Some crew put 'Punk' in the plane and immediately the pup would head for the nose and ride with the pilot and co-pilot. I guess the dog is with our old Command Officer who was Lt. Colonel Keating, a lawyer in Chicago. He became attached to her and wanted to keep her, and if the Colonel is back, it's probably with him," Wheeler concluded.

S/Sgt. Wheeler served in the service for three years, entering the service in November of 1942 and getting his discharge October 16, 1945. He was overseas for a seventeen months, serving in England, France and Germany. He was in the U. S. Army Air Corps and in a ground crew.

Telephone Co. Supervisor is Club Speaker

Explains New Developments During War Years

Irvin Mattick, of St. Louis, information supervisor of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, was the speaker at the noon-day meeting of the Rotary club, at the Bothwell hotel, today.

Mr. Mattick, who was introduced by Z. Lyle Brown, manager of the local telephone office, told of new developments that had been made through various experiments in the laboratories of the Bell Telephone company during the war years. He said that the electrical gun director had made it possible to bring down a plane with ninety shells. In the first world war, he explained, it took 17,000 shells, and at the beginning of the second world war it required 19,000 shells because the planes of the second world war were so superior to those of the first world war.

Spoke of Radar

The speaker told of radar, how it operates and its post-war use especially for navigation. He said that during the war it was necessary to train people for the operation of radar, because radar was so new.

He spoke of the possibilities of television for the future and of long distance dialing by telephone.

Mr. Mattick had on display many electrical devices of the company.

N. U. Renshaw was program chairman and Noland Bricken, president, presided over the meeting.

Visitors were Rotarian Ewal D. Behnke, U. S. A., of Booneville, Mo., John F. Judd, guest of A. Chambers; Tom Yount, guest of C. F. Scotten; George H. Scruton, guest of N. U. Renshaw; L. E. Brothers of Hirohito May Have to Work

Things Getting Rough for Royalty Now in Japan

By Russell Brines

TOKYO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The prince business has fallen off something scandalous in Japan and things are so rough that the papers are saying that even the three jobless brothers of Hirohito are liable to have to go to work for a living.

Jiji news agency made sort of an unemployment census of the imperial household and found that in all there were 12 princes out of a job.

Business began to get bad, after lull times in the early 1940's, along about the time the imperial household began to wonder where all the bombs were coming from that were being dumped outside the palace door.

Then, first thing anybody knew, why the emperor up and declared peace, and here were all these princes in uniform and all without a war to wear them in.

Then Came Americans And then the Americans came barging in, abolishing Japanese military outfits right and left and the princes began looking for fresh employment.

There is something or other in the Japanese history that says princes have got to go careering in the army and navy, and anyone knows there isn't much future in that for a Japanese these days.

Well there were these three brothers of Emperor Hirohito — Prince Yasuhito Chichibu, a major general without an army; Prince Nobushito Takamatsu, a captain without a navy, and Prince Takahito, a major.

Maybe they might have eked out some sort of an existence occupying their hereditary seats in the house of peers, but no, Gen. MacArthur cut loose with an order the other day disqualifying these military career officers from government jobs.

May Have to Work

There was one forlorn hope for these princes. Maybe they could kind of hang around the palace and mince along with some of the residue of the imperial household funds.

But now, says Jiji, nobody knows how much of all those yen the emperor's household can keep, because some of it may have to go to foot the reparations bills, and the other overhead that goes with losing a war.

So, the agency adds, household officials figure they may just have to go out and find some jobs for all these princes.

Thunder Approval At Mass Meeting of Resolution Calling For Investigation

By John Grover
MANILA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—At least 12,000 American soldiers jammed into the shell-battered ruins of the Philippines Hall of congress tonight for a noisy but orderly mass protest to the demobilization slowdown and thundered approval of a resolution calling for a congressional investigation.

Boos rang through the hall as an enlisted man, acting as chairman, read a statement from Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, commanding army forces in the Western Pacific, explaining the delay in home-bound trips.

Earlier, thousands of milling enlisted men had marched to Styer's headquarters and sent in a committee of five, which was told by the general that the "changing international situation" prevented sending all eligible men home at once.

Long before 6 p. m., servicemen began gathering and climbing the twisted masonry fronting the great flight of ruined steps to the capitol entrance, where a make-shift stage had been set up with a wheezing loudspeaker.

Hall Was Packed

By the time T/4 Harold Shiffrin, Rochester, N. Y., the chairman called the meeting to order the triangular lot in front of the legislative hall was packed with thousands of soldiers.

They cheered as one by one enlisted men took the stage and spoke their mind.

The speakers exhorted their listeners to write their congressmen, and declared the war department was changing the rules on redeployment.

One soldier orator asserted that "the only thing they (the war department) ever manager to snarl up worse was the draft."

Another said that "since the last regulations were promulgated every guy in the army has his release day figured down to the last minute and now the war department 'slowdown' leaves everybody up in the air."

Shiffrin read Styer's statement asserting that the army in the Philippines was doing its best to get home, shipping 549,318 high-point soldiers to the states since the war ended.

Much Work To Do

"Bear in mind," the statement said, "it took us 30 months to build our strength in the Western Pacific, yet it has been reduced in four months by two-thirds."

Styer's statement said there still remained much work to do, supplying occupation forces in Japan, Okinawa, Korea and elsewhere, "rolling up" unnecessary bases and disposing of surplus property.

"Now we must do our part to get the world back on its normal course," he added. "If we fail to do so we shall nullify the victory we won at such great cost."

The resolution calling for a congressional resolution charged that "A great amount of confusion exists regarding the demobilization program" and as a result there had been "a breakdown of morale among the members of the armed forces as well as their folks back home."

Telegrams To Truman

It likewise declared that an announcement the 86th Division would be activated in the Philippines on a battle basis had "caused confusion as to our mission in the Philippines."

Before the resolution came up, Headquarters company sub-base "R" from Batangas submitted a proposed draft of telegrams to be sent to President Truman and all congressmen.

The one to the president urged him to take immediate steps to speed up "the hopelessly confused demobilization program" and take it "out of the hands of the vested interests in the war department and place it in the hands of a

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace isn't taking any chances on being left holding the political bag if the Truman administration begins to lose out with the public.

He continues on excellent terms with Truman, but has also embarked on a speech-making campaign, while supporting most of Truman's enunciated program, makes it plain that the ex-vice president still has a very forthright political mind of his own.

It didn't get much attention, but Wallace made a significant speech at a Negro fraternity meeting in Washington the other night which drew wide acclaim in the Negro press — a segment of the public that Bob Hannegan has been worried about ever since Mrs. Truman tossed aside the question of the DAR and Hazel Scott, wife of the Negro congressman, who was barred from singing in Constitution hall.

Wallace's next talk will be at a ten-state farm meeting in St. Paul on January 11. This will be Wallace's first farm speech in almost two years and has more significance than meets the naked eye. After January, Wallace will make three or four speeches a month all over the country, renewing his contacts with the hundreds of delegates who voted for him at the last Democratic convention, at the same time checking his political fences around the nation.

Wallace doesn't plan to resign from the cabinet before June, and when he does he will go out with Truman's blessing in order to campaign for liberal congressmen who will support the Truman program. This is the type of campaigning where Truman is weakest and Wallace strongest, so there will be no break with the Truman administration—unless.

The "unless" hinges on plans to get Wallace to testify before congress regarding Truman's recommended labor legislation and the much debated cooling-off period. Wallace is opposed to this and if called before congress will be forced to say so—in which case he will follow customary practice and submit his resignation. The trouble-makers on Capitol Hill already are maneuvering to put him on the spot.

Secretary of Agriculture

Able Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has come a long way from the day when he went out to New Mexico many years ago, suffering from tuberculosis. Attaining membership in the cabinet of the U. S. is quite a climb for a country boy. There are only a handful of men every four years who attain that honor and distinction.

At heart, however, Clinton Anderson is still a frustrated man. Most people don't know it, but his secret ambition long was to become an author.

When he first went to New Mexico, Anderson had plenty of time to write. And he turned out dozens of magazine articles, aimed primarily at the Saturday Evening Post. As fast as he sent them to Philadelphia, however, Post editors sent them back.

Anderson collected a fine assortment of rejection slips and finally stopped writing. He turned to insurance, cattle raising and politics, in all of which he has been eminently successful.

The other day, however, Anderson got his revenge. Bearded Forrest Davis of the Saturday Evening Post, sometimes nicknamed the "Missing Link," dropped in to see Anderson and offered him a part-time writing job. He said the Saturday Evening Post could use one article per month from the secretary of agriculture and offered a very juicy fee.

But the secretary of agriculture, now one of the busiest men in Washington, said he had no time to write. He gave the Saturday

STOP JOHN CLAY!

By Lionel Mosher

Copyright, 1945.
INEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Pike Calvin senses an ominous air about THE SADDLEBACK INN, exclusive mountain resort. Shrewd, fat and bald Roger Bland says he knows that Pike is there only to see John Clay, powerful magnate who owns the inn. He tells Pike that lovely Fur Tudor is Clay's niece. He also claims to know what happened to Mary Butler.

III

PIKE had lunch—an underdone chop, curried rice, cold cloverleaf biscuits with apple butter, and bitter warmed-over coffee with milk which he suspected had been thickened with canned milk. For this, he reflected, I am paying John Clay $18 a day.

He went out to the main deck. Mr. Hitt was putting envelopes in the boxes of the guests. He laid them down as Pike approached and his white hands fluttered. Pike said:

"Is there a library in town?" "That was a casual enough question, but it did something to Mr. Hitt. He had on a brown silk scarf with big white dots on it. It was knotted carefully at his throat in lieu of a necktie, and Mr. Hitt put one hand up to the knot and pressed it gently.

"A library," he said. "Yes." "How do I get there?" "If it is some book we could send over for."

"No," Pike said. "Mr. Hitt's bowed lips straightened. He pointed through a big window.

"Do you see that white tower next to the steeple?"

Pike saw it.

"How far?"

"About a mile. The station wagon is going in for the mail."

"I'll walk, thank you," Pike said.

"Very well," Mr. Hitt picked up the envelopes. "You take the Valley Road."

Pike went up to his room. He walked slowly across the pale blue carpet.

Evening Post a "rejection slip" of his own.

Note — One of the best pieces of literature written by any Washington official in recent months was Secretary Anderson's guest column for the Washington Merry-Go-Round last summer, in which he found time to express the hope that some of the neighboring habits of the war, such as car pools and Victory Gardens, might be continued in times of peace.

Byrnes vs. Leahy

Jimmy Byrnes' most vigorous critic inside the White House is now presidential chief of staff Admiral William Leahy.

When Leahy read the final text of the Moscow communiqué, he hit the ceiling. He then burned the midnight oil writing a blunt analysis of the Moscow decisions for the president. He even went so far as to describe Byrnes' Moscow agreement as a "veritable Munich." He also took occasion in the same White House memo to chastise Byrnes for the complete breakdown of liaison between the White House and the state department.

Actually the decisions at Moscow now have Truman's blessing. Both Truman and Byrnes, who had been irritated at each other for weeks, held a love feast on board the S. S. Williamsburg. Truman's private yacht, during the New Year weekend, when Truman agreed that Byrnes had taken the only reasonable course with the Russians and British in the Soviet capital.

Admiral Leahy is now saying that Byrnes is trying to have him ousted from the White House, which may be true. Actually, Leahy has long wanted to retire and has talked to Truman about doing so. Each time, however, the president has urged him to stay on. Now the admiral is so upset over our relations with Russia that he would probably like to remain until they are ironed out.

State Department Sabotage

A significant off-the-record meeting took place in the state department shortly after President Truman announced his plan to bring European refugees into the United States by filling up immigration quotas during the remainder of the fiscal year. The meeting consisted of members of the state department's visa office and, although it wasn't said so in these exact words, net result of the session was to sabotage the president's plan for admitting refugees.

The state department officials decided: (1) That they did not have enough staff to handle more immigration visas; (2) That they would have to concentrate first on bringing home the foreign-born wives of American soldiers.

While the White House is equally anxious to expedite the return of soldiers' wives, the significant thing about the state department meeting was that officials did not consider asking for a larger staff to handle refugee visas. Obviously, they would have received Truman's 100 per cent backing. Their chief conclusion was that the wives of American soldiers were all they would have time to handle with

He wished it was time to call Sam Pringle. He should have made it 1:30.

What was all this about Mary Butler? Pike was planning to talk with Mary Butler. She was John Clay's secretary. But something had happened. She was a lovely girl, too, Bland said. The "too" was easy enough to come at: a little deferential bow to the virginal loveliness of Miss Tudor. But the "was." What had happened to Mary Butler?

Pike looked at his suitcase. It was unstrapped. He had strapped it carefully before he went down stairs. He remembered clearly.

He went over and lifted the cover. He rifled his hand through the clothing. Nothing had been taken out or put in. But someone had opened his luggage and gone through it.

AS Pike went out across the broad veranda and down on to the lawn, Miss Tudor was just crossing the blue-stone drive. She had a book under her arm.

I'm in luck, Pike thought. When she reached the road, she must have heard Pike behind her. She stopped and looked up the Valley Road toward the mountain, giving him time to pass.

"I beg your pardon," Pike raised his hat. "Is this the Valley Road?"

She regarded him deliberately, then pointed to a sign. The letters VALLEY ROAD were at least six inches high.

"Thank you," he said. "Which way do I go?"

"Where," she asked, "do you want to end up?"

He glanced at the book under her arm.

"The library," he said.

She flushed faintly. Then she smiled and shrugged.

"I'm going there," she said. "I'll show you."

"My name is Calvin," he said.

their present staff before the fiscal year runs out on June 30 and they didn't want to enlarge their staff.

NOTE — American immigration quotas have never been filled during the war, nor for some time before the war. Thus a large number of refugees could be admitted, as proposed by President Truman, without new legislation and simply by using present quotas.

GI Mail

Servicemen's mail received by this columnist has been so heavy that unfortunately it is impossible to answer each individual letter. However, below are general answers to some of the questions most consistently raised in GI mail.

Navy Storekeepers and Yeomen

These men have been handicapped in getting discharges because they have been working patriotically to expedite the discharge of other men. Unquestionably this has been a hardship and the navy, finally recognizing this, informs me that it will lower the point scores for storekeepers and yeomen on or about February 15, with another reduction March 2.

Marines

Marine headquarters states that Marine corps demobilization is now six weeks ahead of schedule. The Marine Corps is now sending 17 and 18-year olds to the Far East to replace Marines with long service overseas. Many letters have complained about the shipment of younger men to China. However, this complaint should not be registered against the Marine Corps which is only carrying out orders, but against the overall foreign policy of the United States which has agreed with Chiang Kai-Shek to keep Marines in China. It seems only fair that if Marines are to be kept there, those who have served longest should be returned to the states and replaced by younger men.

Mail

There has been considerable delay in delivering soldier mail to Europe and the Pacific. This is due to quick movement of troops, particularly in the European theatre, where the APO number is changed rapidly. It is not uncommon for a soldier to have two different APO numbers within a period of two weeks. This is largely because of redeployment and transfer of troops home. The army assures me that it is doing its best to straighten out this mail tangle.

"I know," she said. "Mine is Tudor."

"This is very kind of you."

She did not reply.

"Especially," he said, "as I was obviously trying to make your acquaintance."

"Obviously," she said.

"What's the book?" He pointed to the volume under her arm.

"The Robe."

"Good?"

She gazed at him in wonder.

"Haven't you read it?"

He shook his head.

"But you're going to the library now," he said. "If you're returning 'The Robe,' I'll take it out, if they'll let me."

The library turned out to be a brick colonial building with wings of three geometric patterns of shade on the lush green lawn.

Cut large and deep in white stone over the entrance were the words: THE CLAY MEMORIAL LIBRARY.

In memory of what Clay, Pike wondered as they approached. He said:

"Quite a place."

"It was built in memory of my Aunt Emma," she said.

"It's a fine memorial," he said.

"Yes," she said. "She died four years ago. She was my mother's younger sister and John Clay's second wife."

He looked at her sharply, but her face was like a mask.

"She was only 40," the girl said.

"What did she die of?" Pike said.

"The girl turned and looked at him. She said:

"I'm not sure."

Pike opened his mouth and closed it again. There was a tight little smile on her lips, and Pike could see her brown hand clutching the book under her arm so tightly that the knuckles showed white.

"Aren't you coming in?" she said.

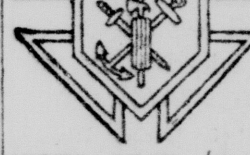

"Not now," he said. "I have business in town."

"I'll ask Miss Felton to hold the book for you."

"Thanks," he said, "for everything."

"You're quite welcome," she said.

THE DOCTOR SAYS Visual Corrections Depend on Ailment

By WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Clear vision is essential for success in many occupations. Failure to see clearly may be corrected by wearing proper glasses, but if glasses fail to correct the difficulty, a disease of the eye or brain is suspected.

Dr. O'Brien

The usual visual disorders are nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism and presbyopia. Except for presbyopia (the farsightedness of advancing), the common visual disorders are caused by abnormal shapes of the eyeball.

In order to see clearly, the image must be brought to a sharp focus on the retina, a tissue in the back of the eye. Fuzziness may result in an eyeball which is too long or too short, or irregular in shape; clear vision also depends on the presence of a normal retina and nerves connecting the eyes with the brain.

Injury To Cornea

When light rays are reflected from an object, they first pass through the cornea or clear window in the front of the eye; scars or cloudiness of the cornea may interfere with vision. If too little light passes through the cornea, it is possible to remove the tissue and transplant a clear cornea.

Looking Backward

At the meeting of the Pioneer society held yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: L. E. Friemel, president; William Drechsler, vice president; Otto Botz, recording secretary; Fred Zimmerman, financial secretary; Herman Kirchhoffer, treasurer; John Tegler, trustee three years.

Earthquake shocks, varying in duration from 15 seconds to one minute and in degree of intensity from slight tremors to vibrations which shook the walls of houses and drove the inhabitants to the street in fear, were experienced at about 6:17 o'clock yesterday evening in western Missouri, eastern Kansas and southern Nebraska.

Yanks are not Particularly Interested in Folies Bergres

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(P) World Traveler
PARIS, Jan. 7 — The French capital's famous girl-show, the Folies Bergres, has, of course, always been a revealing affair, but in these post-war days one finds it making disclosures in a far larger sense than is implied in our little pun.
One shouldn't expect, for instance, to be able to gauge the state of the nation from a visit to the Folies, or yet to make interesting psychological observations regarding the genus Yankee-GI. Still that has been the experience of Madame Mack and myself on renewing acquaintance after some years with this internationally known variety show.
We sat on the center aisle and five rows back. We noted that a large percentage of the crowd was American officers and GIs.

No Heat
Our first discovery had to do with the state of the nation, and it was indeed startling. The great theater was unheated although it was sub-freezing weather. Most spectators kept their overcoats on, as did many of the orchestra, and they still were cold. The real sufferers, however, were the ladies of the cast, who were in an unhappy state of dishabille for such a night. G strings aren't great protection against wintry blasts, and some girls were blue with cold. Still, they were good trouperers, for they went through two and a half hours of torture without losing their smiles.
So here again there was registered in an extraordinary manner one of the most dangerous problems not only of France but of all Europe—the terrible shortage of coal and other fuel. This shortage is striking everywhere—home, public places, business houses, industries. It fills the winter months with peril.

GIs Indifferent
However, to return to the Folies Bergres. Mrs. Mack and I were much interested in getting the reaction of the GIs to this G-string symphony, which is considerably more liberal than the shows to which the boys are accustomed at home. The present Folies, by the way, are no more free-and-easy than were those which I saw offered a generation ago during the last war to the dads of the present GIs. But the Folies always were naughty. That's the naked truth.

It must be admitted that some very handsome figures drifted across the stage. Still (and we thought this would be of particular interest to the girls back home) the GIs showed little or no enthusiasm. They applauded a superb strong-man act, some very funny turns by a comedian and other bits—but had small commendation for the back-to-nature scenes. The boys just sat there, chewing gum and viewing the display with an impartial and unemotional attitude.
Not Blase
When the show was about half through I asked a sergeant what he thought of it. He considered my question for a minute and then replied cynically:
"I was trying to figure that out myself."
And what does all this mean? Well, if you are going to suggest that the boys are blase, you will be wrong. Healthy minded lads don't get blase. I think it means that a little of this sort of entertainment goes a long way with the average American.

Youth Chosen To Attend 4-H Congress Tells Of Experiences

(Written by Ira M. Williams, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Williams, Houstonia, a state winner in leadership to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, December 2 to 6.)

One of the highest honors I have received is the privilege of attending the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago, since the Congress delegates are a select group of the finest rural youth in America. Approximately 1,500 4-H club members and leaders from the United States and Canada made up this year's delegation.

The Congress consisted of tours, discussions, and entertainment. The tours to the National History Museum, the Shedd Aquarium, Museum of Science and Industry, and the National Stock Yards were an education in themselves.

I enjoyed very much the Sunday morning service in the Central church of Chicago. Being a guest of the Sunday Evening club and taking part in their program was another highlight of the Congress. Dr. Richard Raines, pastor of the Hennepin Methodist church of Minneapolis gave us a challenge when he said "Youth must use their talents or lose them."

Theme of Congress

The theme of this year's National 4-H Club Congress—"4-H in a Changing World"—was a challenge to all of us.

The ten guide posts for 4-H club programs used in our discussion groups brought out many things for each of us to think about and will aid in guiding our thinking of the future. The guide post

"serving as citizens in maintaining world peace" probably received most emphasis in group discussions. It was generally agreed by the delegates that the only way of maintaining world peace is by following the example of the Prince of Peace.

Provides opportunity

One of the objectives of the National 4-H Club Congress summarizes the fine things that I got from it: "To provide rural youth an opportunity for discussion of methods for developing ideals and standards for farming, homemaking, family and community life, citizenship, and how to mobilize the energies of youth so that they may solve the problem of peace."

A "Look at the Books" or "A Finger in the Pie"?

Which is the UAW-CIO really after? Is it seeking facts—or new economic power? Does it want to know things—or run things?

These questions concern you as well as General Motors.

For years the facts about General Motors have been made public.

In spite of this, the UAW-CIO demands a chance to look at our books, with the hint that we could meet Union demands "if the truth were really known."

We have firmly declined to recognize this as a basis for bargaining.

1. The Full Facts are Published

How much General Motors takes in each year—how much it pays employees—how much it pays to stockholders—how much it pays in taxes—how much net profit we make—and many other facts are plainly stated in annual reports and quarterly reports.

These are broadcast to 425,000 stockholders from coast to coast—sent to newspapers and libraries. Additional copies are free for the asking.

2. All Figures are Thoroughly Checked

Every General Motors Annual Statement is audited by outside auditors. Similar figures are filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission.

Does the UAW-CIO honestly believe that General Motors would or could deceive these experts?

3. The Basis of Collective Bargaining is Defined

The Wagner Act lays down the rules for collective bargaining. These cover such areas as rates of pay, hours of work, working conditions.

No mention is made of earnings, prices, sales volume, taxes and the like. These are recognized as the problems of management.

4. Something New has been Added

The obvious fact is that the UAW-CIO has gone beyond its rights under the law—and is reaching not for information but for new power—not for a look at past figures, but for the power to sit in on forecasting and planning the future.

A "look at the books" is a clever catch phrase intended as an opening wedge whereby Unions hope to pry their way into the whole field of management.

It leads surely to the day when Union bosses, under threat of strike, will demand the right to tell what we can make, when we can make it, where we can make it, and how much we must charge you—all with an eye on what labor can take out of the business, rather than on the value that goes into the product.

5. This Threatens All Business

If the Union can do this in the case of General Motors, it can do it to every business in this land of ours.

Is this just imagination? Union spokesmen have said, "The Union has stated time after time that this issue is bigger than just an ordinary wage argument, that it is bigger than the Corporation and bigger than the Union."

For Labor Unions to use the monopolistic power of their vast membership to extend the scope of wage negotiations to include more than wages, hours and working conditions is the first step toward handing the management of business over to the Union bosses.

We therefore reject the idea of a "look at the books" not because we have anything to hide but because the idea itself hides a threat to GM, to all business, and to you, the public.

Chinese Make Progress in Truce Move

'Cease Fire' Order Expected to be Issued on Tuesday

CHUNGKING, Jan. 7.—(P)—Gen. George C. Marshall met today with government and Communist peace negotiations and at the end of the first historic session declared that "we have made progress."

President Truman's special envoy, making his first comment since he stepped into the midst of the Chinese negotiations after the rivals agreed to methods leading to a truce, said the conference would be resumed tomorrow.

Marshall met for about three hours with Gen. Chou En-lai, head of the delegation and Communist sent here to talk peace and Gen. Chang Chun, representing the Chinese government.

All three emerged smiling from the conference. Both Chang and Chou agreed with Marshall that progress had been made.

Truce Predicted

Earlier Chou had predicted that a truce halting the spotted fighting in China's civil turmoil would be made effective before Thursday, when China's all-party conference opens its peace meeting designed to skirt the peril of civil war and work out a program of peace and unity.

It was reported reliably that the "cease fire" order would be given when committee of three concludes its work, possibly tomorrow.

It also was understood that no political problems were touched upon at today's session, which was devoted entirely to a discussion of details for the truce and the restoration of China's paralyzed communications.

Greater Hope Now

It was generally conceded that Marshall's direct participation in attempts to solve the current crisis aroused far greater hope of settlement than has existed before.

After the conference, Marshall told reporters it would be "highly undesirable" to disclose the character of the talks now, but promised that a full statement would be made when they are finished.

To this Chou added "It's been a good morning."

"It went very well," added Chang.

Lacks Rights in United States

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(P)—Government counsel told the supreme court today that Japanese General Tomoyuki Yamashita lacks any rights in United States courts in time of war.

Solicitor General J. Howard McGrath asked the court to decline to review the fat enemy commander's conviction of atrocities in the Philippines and the death sentence imposed by an American Military commission.

Yamashita is in jail in Manila waiting the court's decision, which McGrath said concerned international considerations of the utmost gravity—determining the extent to which this country may in wartime deal with those who have barbarously waged war against us.

Army officers acting as counsel for Yamashita argued orally and in a brief submitted today that the enemy general had been entitled to civil trial and that the military commission which tried him declined to allow him to cross-examine witnesses.

Stretch Farm Labor To Meet Rush Season

Work Schedule During Winter Very Important

Winter has its schedule of farm work that is no less important than the operations of spring and summer. And the proper management of jobs that may be done in the winter will do a lot toward helping the scarce supply of farm labor stretch to meet demands of the rush seasons later on, says J. U. Morris, county extension agent.

On livestock farms, construction of self feeders, feed bunks, troughs, bins, and similar equipment will save feed and labor. Building movable farrowing houses and rearranging fences to permit raising spring pigs on clean ground will help control parasites and put more pork on the market with less feed.

Keeping clean dry bedding in barns and sheds takes time all winter, but will help keep down death losses from disease and parasites. Doing this will result in healthier, more vigorous stock which will gain faster on the feed available.

Installing pumping facilities, building fenced ponds with water piped to tanks, and rearranging field and pasture fences to give convenient access to stock water will save hours of time and labor and increase the income per hour of labor.

For Better Milk
On the dairy farm, many improvements can be made to increase the quantity and improve the quality of milk produced. Building a milk house and milk cooler, painting and whitewashing buildings, putting a straw loft and wooden stanchions in the calf barn, building tank heaters and keeping them in operation during cold winter months will save time and increase production.

Poultry and egg production can be increased substantially on many farms by building more feeders and putting in sanitary water stands. Partitions in laying houses to separate pullets from old hens will be profitable. It will pay to construct summer range shelters, and to get brooding equipment ready for the spring rush.

Many steps can be taken this winter to insure higher soil fertility and high crop yields next year. Manure and stack bottoms can be hauled and spread on fields this winter. Lime and fertilizer can be applied on pasture land and disked into the soil when conditions are suitable. Pastures may be cleared of brush, stones and other obstacles which interfere with mowing. And then they may be reseeded with legume and grass seed.

And, as everybody knows, winter is the best time to check over all the farm machinery and field implements and to get them in the best possible condition for the work of the busy production season ahead.

John Youngkamp In Short Course

One of the seventeen young men from sixteen counties in Missouri who attended the short course for 4-H machinery project leaders at the University of Missouri from December 19-22, was John Youngkamp of Beaman.

Mr. Youngkamp reports that the instruction included laboratory work, lectures, chart study, slide films, and motion pictures on the subjects of engine and tractor lubrication, care of tractors, ignition system maintenance, and the inspection of mowers, plows, planters, and combines for repairs and adjustments.

The four-day intensive training course was given at the agricultural engineering buildings of the College of Agriculture and was under the direction of Prof. Mark M. Jones.

The men who attended the school had been recommended by the county extension agents and approved by the faculty. Each of the men has recognized mechanical ability and will help with 4-H machinery maintenance projects in his home community or county next year.

Rattle-Dazzled Them
Ships were not painted in curious designs during World War I for the purpose of making them less visible, but to make it more difficult for torpedo boats to estimate their speed and course.

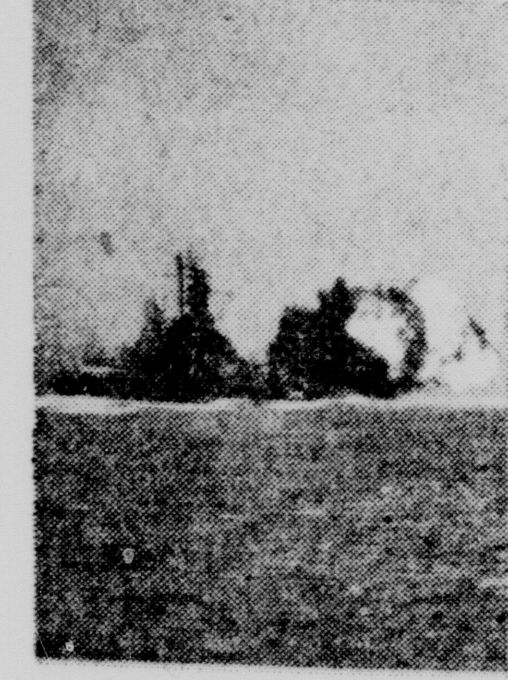

1945—YEAR OF RETRIBUTION—By NEA—No. 7: "Bottoms Up" for the Jap

By NEA Service
THE U. S. fleet rose from a Pearl Harbor graveyard in 1941 to prowl the Pacific four years later unchallenged by an enemy.

The professional skill of the Navy, the industrial might of the nation and the magnificent aptitude of American youth made this possible.

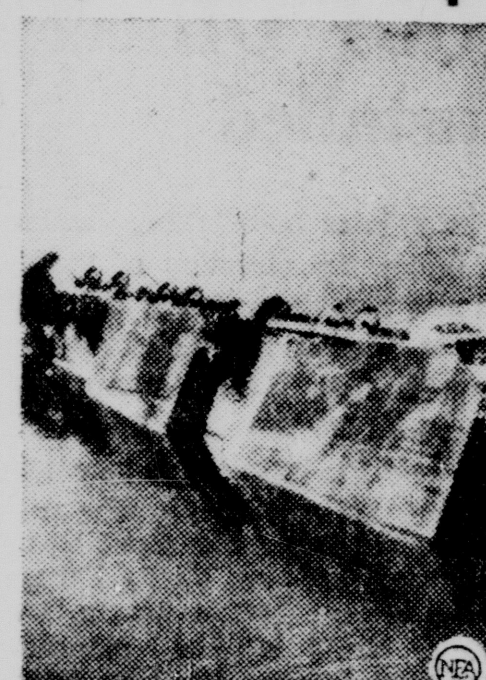

The Pacific war was an amphibious and logistical operation of unprecedented size. Adm. Ernest J. King told shipyard workers early in 1942: "You build 'em, we'll fight 'em." Although two old battleships were lost at Pearl Harbor, eight new ones had joined the fleet by V-J Day. Against a loss of five aircraft and six escort carriers, we completed 27 carriers and 110 escort carriers. We lost 10 cruisers; 48 new ones were built. We lost 52 submarines, built 203.

The Japs built too ... and we sank. They lost 11 of 12 battleships, 20 of 26 carriers, one of which is shown in panel at far right above, and 38 of 43 cruisers. The few ships that remained afloat generally were too damaged to be of value. The Jap merchant fleet was decimated. Following the Nelsonian doctrine that a naval victory should be pressed until the enemy is annihilated, the U. S. fleet slashed up a chain of Pacific islands until we were poised at Saipan, Iwo Jima, the Philippines, Guam and Okinawa for the last crucial strike at the Japanese mainland.

The atomic bomb, projected from this strategic deployment in August, ended the war and made this final operation unnecessary.

Tomorrow: Air Assault on Japan.

Shop With Small Forge And Tools Big Farm Help

A WELL-EQUIPPED FARM SHOP SAVES TIME AND MONEY

A shop equipped with a small forge, hand drill and similar tools may well be one of the farm's most important service buildings. Winter work in such a shop can be very profitable, say the agricultural engineers at the University of Missouri. Winter inspection and repair of farm machinery will save money and machines and it will save much valuable time in the rush of spring and summer.

The tractor, combine or binder, mower, drill, plows and smaller machines should be inspected thoroughly. All worn or broken parts should be replaced. Working parts subject to rust should be cleaned and oiled or greased. On some equipment, cleaning and painting will both pay good returns in longer usefulness.

The man who is handy with forge and drill can often make repairs that will take the place of spare parts that are no longer obtainable. Parts that are needed and still on manufacturers' lists should be ordered just as early as possible if the local dealer does not have them in stock.

Getting machines in top working order and protecting them from rust and weathering is a good way to sell winter work at a right good price. The shop need not be fancy or expensive—just so it is well lighter, fairly warm, and equipped with a few of the essential tools for repair work.

Sight Beats Sound
It is common for soldiers to see the flash of an enemy gun then hear the whine of the passing projectile and, last of all, to hear the boom of the cannon, due to the comparative slowness of sound.

Old Dining Custom
Children had to stand at the table while eating, according to a dining custom of colonial times. In some families, they had to take their place behind their parents and food was passed back to them.

France Is Cheese Leader
More than 250 varieties of cheese are made in France. Holland produces 45, Italy 200, and Denmark about 60. Only a few kinds are produced in the United States.

Nothing in Hell Could Stop 'Em
The slogan of the 104th Infantry (Timberwolf) division is "Nothing in hell must stop the Timberwolves."
Nothing in Germany stopped them.
The Timberwolf division began its active combat career in Holland, spearheading the British I Corps across the Mark river and to the Maas. Shifting over to the American First army front, the 104th jumped off for Anchen toward the Roer river. In a series of brilliant maneuvers, many executed at night, the Timberwolves gobbled up town after town and threw the enemy into confusion.
